FORGING THE GROWTH OF THE DRUG

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia, June 30.—[Special.] Infamous as has been the policy of Great Britain toward New Foundland, the case does not stand alone.

To the average English statesman there is but one God—Commerce. Preaching the gospel in envying tone, and leading her vessels with equal cargoes of Bibles and rum, they go forth into the ports of the earth, the Bible to act as a cover for the sale of the rum. While the missionary is endeavoring to make himself understood by people who know not what he says, the commercial agent is around in the multitude, pushing the sale of liquors and drugs, that dividends may come back to some of the Godly men "at home," who contribute to the foreign missions fund.

This statement may seem harsh, but the history bears it out, and the whole of England's East Indian policy is an illustration of it. The opium dens of the world attest the fidelity with which England has used her power to degrade whole peoples, and a visit to any one of the "joints" in our large cities will convince the most skeptical as to the result of the "blessed influence of British civilization" in foreign parts.

The credit for the first decisive opposition to the opium trade belongs to China. Strange as it may seem, in view of our prejudice against the Chinese, their own government vainly endeavored to suppress a traffic for the introduction of which the Bible was made a pretext. This traffic in opium was carried on by British smugglers. The piratical boats pushed into every Chinese port, disposing of their contraband cargo. So determined and open became this trade that in 1837 the emperor of China first burned all the boats belonging to natives, and destroyed their cargoes. This only had the effect of giving the English smugglers a monopoly of the trade. The people of China then added their indignation to the determination of the emperor. This indignation manifested itself in the threat of a massacre to kill all the foreign residents. The history of the agitation which followed is full of interest. The English superintendent went to the home government of the traffic "that it would stain the foreign character with constantly aggravating disgrace in the sight of the whole of the better portion of the people," that all the hazards incurred were "for the scrambling and, comparatively considered, insignificant gains of a few reckless individuals, founding their conduct on the belief that they were exempt from the operation of all laws, British or Chinese."

The high imperial commissioner of the central court issued an address to foreigners of all nations, in which he asked: "Why do you bring to our land the opium, which in your country is not made use of, by it defrauding us of our property and causing injury to our lives? I find that with this thing you have seduced and deluded the people of China for years of years, and countless are the unhappy souls you have thus acquired. Such conduct rouses indignation in every human heart and it is utterly execrable in the eye of celestial retributor."

In answer to the queen, numerous signed, the Chinese say: "Though not making use of the opium, we venture nevertheless on the manufacture and sale of it, and with it to reduce the simple folk of this land, to seek their own livelihood by the exposure of other men's injury; and such acts are bitterly abhorred to the nature of man and utterly opposed to the ways of heaven."

In the chronicles of those days, when England's queen was being lauded for her interest in sending the Bible to foreign parts, we are told that the trade continued and increased in spite of the pleadings of the high priest, for to the East India Company, sustained by a committee of parliament, "it does not appear advisable to abandon so important a source of revenue."

At length, in 1839, the Chinese Imperial commissioner, Lin, excited to exasperation, caused to be destroyed 20,000 chests of opium, seized from the English merchants, "a solitary instance," as Williams states it, "in the history of the world of a pagan monarch preferring to destroy what would injure his own subjects rather than to fill his pockets with its sale."

Not a person was injured or any other property destroyed.

But the opium was worth over two millions sterling!

The agent was an appeal to arms by England and the "opium war," which Mr. Gladstone said: "A war more unjust in origin, a war more calculated to cover this country with permanent disgrace, I do not know and have not read of. The right honorable gentleman opposite spoke of the British flag waving in glory at Canton. That flag is stained to protect an infamous traffic, and the flag was hoisted, except as it is now, the coat of arms of China, we should recoil from its sight with horror."

In this war of fourteen months, waged by an alleged Christian government to force the sale of all drugs upon one not Christian, "for the money there was in it," cities were destroyed, thousands of innocent people, destroyed their homes, were slaughtered. When at length the Chinese monarch was compelled to surrender, he did so, saying: "It is true I cannot prevent the introduction of the flowing poison; gainseeking and corrupt men will for profit and sensuality defeat my will, but both will induce me to derive a revenue from the vice and misery of my people."

It was not until twenty years after, however, in 1857, that the sale of opium in China became legalized. Thus the English "shopkeepers" succeeded in forcing upon the most virtuous nation in Asia a drug the use of which does more harm than all the druggists of the world ever saw.

So jealous as this story is, it does not tell the worst. England is not only guilty of having seduced the commerce in opium, but she has seduced it from its original use, forced its circulation, and created the taste for its consumption. The Mohammedans are a temperate people. To them the use of opium came as a medicine. When the poppy was introduced into India, its cultivation was reserved to the government and carefully guarded. It is all in the hands of the East India Company, and the right of exportation was secured, and from that time on the government is responsible for the drug. That there was millions of dollars apparent; the wider the market, the more the revenue. The government with deliberate

TWO LIVELY ITEMS

BEARING UPON THE EXTORTION OF THE RAILROADS

The Governor Will Call Attention to the Matter in a Special Message—To Go Before the Interstate Commission.

Here are two lively items in reference to the coal rate extortion which the railroads have decided upon.

The governor will call the attention of the legislature to the matter in a special message, and Chairman Trammell, of the railroad commission, has already taken steps to bring the matter before the interstate commerce commission.

Thus it appears that the ball is rolling, and if the people are not given relief it will be because the legislature will not do it, or because the interstate commerce commission cannot do it—and it can be said with safety that neither of these things are likely to develop.

Chairman Trammell, in talking to a Constitution reporter, said yesterday, in reply to the question as to whether the commission would take the matter up at once:

"We have already taken care of it, and some time ago brought the matter before the interstate commission, together with the question of discrimination between interstate rates made by leading roads in this state. We made application to Governor Northern in June for an attorney to help us before the interstate commission, and received this letter in reply from him:

The Governor's Letter.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 12, 1891.—Hon. L. N. Trammell, Chairman Railroad Commission, Atlanta, Ga. Sir: Your letter of recent date, calling my attention to the "act to enlarge the powers of the railroad commission of Georgia," to prescribe for them additional duties, and for other purposes," approved December 19, 1890, has been received.

I note that you further say that "the commission called the attention of the officials of said roads to the fact, and urged upon them the propriety of changing such rates," and that the roads have declined to make the changes suggested by the commission.

You further say that the commission has, therefore, determined to present the facts to the interstate commerce commission and appeal to it for relief, as provided for in the act referred to; and that the "act further provides that the commission, in all work devolving upon it in this connection, shall receive, on application, the services of the attorney general of the state."

In reply, I beg to say that the continued illness of the attorney general makes it impossible for him to render you such aid as would be essential in this matter; and further, to say that, in the continued illness of the attorney general, I have been compelled to employ the services of a competent attorney to discharge the duties devolving upon that office, at a very heavy expense to the state. As there has been no provision made by the general assembly to meet these expenses, and the contingent fund provided by the last session of the general assembly is very nearly exhausted, I have determined to refer the matter of your letter to the next session of the general assembly, and to ask for its consideration as will aid you in carrying out the provisions of the act referred to. Very respectfully,

W. J. NORTON, Governor.

Continuing, Colonel Trammell said: "The above letter explains itself."

"So soon as the commission is furnished with an attorney to represent it before the interstate commerce commission, all the data and evidence will be furnished and a case made, both as to the rates on coal and the discrimination in interstate rates against many points in this state."

"As to what will be done will be a question for the interstate commission to decide. Should they determine that the coal rate is extortionate or too high, of course they will exercise all the power they have to reduce it. As to the question of discriminations in the interstate rates by charging more for a short haul than for a long haul under substantially similar circumstances and conditions, over the same line and in the same direction, the shorter being included in the longer haul, they have decided again and again such a charge to be unlawful, and have forbidden it as often as they have decided it."

"I suppose that this will be sufficient to show that the commission has not been idle, and that they are doing all that they can do to have this matter brought before the interstate commission for a proper adjustment."

THEY HAD NO HOTEL.

So Were Fined $5 and Costs—Billiard and Pool Houses.

Atlanta doesn't allow billiard and poolrooms to keep open after 10 o'clock.

Unless the hall is connected with a hotel.

On this account Messrs. Loyd & Wynne, a firm running a billiard hall at the corner of Pryor and Decatur streets, were tried yesterday.

They had a hotel license but no hotel, and Judge Kontz fined them $5 and costs for keeping open after hours.

Billiard and poolrooms must close at the same time as the barrooms, unless connected with a hotel.

The building itself will cost from fifty to seventy-five thousand dollars. The institution is incorporated for twenty years, with the privilege of renewal.

This may be increased to $200,000.

The entire affair will be patterned after West Point, with all its advantages. There will be a full corps of teachers and drill masters for the best military discipline. As in the United States' great institution, applicants will have to come up to the highest requirements, physically, morally and mentally.

A suggestion, one which is being seriously considered, has been offered. It is to connect the Confederate veterans with the Georgia Military institute by using the land of the veterans for this school.

The old Georgia Military institute is well known to a very large number of Atlanta citizens. It was organized at Marietta in 1852.

It was organized at Marietta in 1852. Captain Frank Mills, now living on Marietta street, was one of the first who entered it. Captain Evan P. Howell was one of the cadets who joined later. Then there were many others prominent in Atlanta today.

In 1865 the building was destroyed by the federalists.

Judge Rodgers has in his possession a picture of the old institute—the only one in existence until recently, when an engraving was made for The Sunny South.

The cannon now at Fort Walker, in Grant's park, were formerly used by the Georgia Military institute cadets. One of these has done damage since the war. It exploded as a cadet fired it several years ago, and it was in consequence.

FULTON.

OF TWO WELL-KNOWN
PEACE DECEASE.

Peace of Emory, the Green-A party at Miss Van Winkle's home and guests of society.

At the home of Colonel M. C. Fulton, in Atlanta, which occurred yesterday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, a gathering in which a great many people were present. It was the marriage of Miss Van Winkle, daughter of Colonel Fulton, to Professor Mansfield T. Peed, professor of mathematics in Emory college at Oxford.

The ceremony was one of quiet elegance, only a few guests and intimate friends being present. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers, including lilies, roses, ferns, evergreens and other flowers in great profusion.

The bride was an extremely pretty girl, and the groom was a well-known man. They were pronounced eloquently by Rev. Morgan Callaway, D. D., professor of divinity in Emory college.

The entrance of the bride and groom was headed by little Carl Ranspach, a child with a Raphael face and curly hair, followed by a child in a white and gold costume, and a child in a white and gold costume, followed by the groom's best man, Mr. John Morris, of Edgewood.

The bride's costume was an exquisite effect of white and gold, and the groom's was a suit of white and gold. After the ceremony an elegant wedding breakfast was served, and then the Professor and Mrs. Peed took the 3 o'clock train for Oxford where they were given a night on an elegant reception by Professor and Mrs. Callaway.

The bride is a lovely young woman, who has very many friends and admirers, both in Atlanta and throughout the state where she is known. She is the eldest daughter of Colonel Fulton.

Professor Peed is one of the ablest members of the faculty of Emory college. He is a graduate of that famous institution of learning, Johns Hopkins university, at Baltimore, and no man stands higher in his field than he does.

Colonel and Mrs. Fulton and their family came to Decatur from McDuffie county. Colonel Fulton is one of the most prominent all-around men of the state, is president of the Decatur County Alliance, and enjoys wide acquaintance in all parts of Georgia. Mrs. Fulton, who was a Miss Hamilton, of Athens, is greatly beloved by all who know her.

The guests present at the marriage yesterday were: Mrs. Charles Pinsky, Mr. Rourke Phinley, of Augusta; Misses Hamilton, of Athens; Colonel and Mrs. Yancy Rome, Dr. and Mrs. Candler, Professor Boswell, Dr. Martin, Mrs. Harry Stone, of Oxford; Miss Emma King, of Miles City, Mo.; Dr. Arch. A. Taylor, Mrs. Ranspach and son, Miss Ida Young, of Decatur; Mr. Harris Best, of Cartersville; Mr. and Mrs. Fontaine, of Atlanta.

The happy couple were the recipients of a large number of elegant presents, and everybody who knew them will join their Decatur friends in extending heartiest congratulations and wishing them all the joys of life.

A beautiful and brilliant lawn party was given by Miss Nellie Van Winkle last evening at her elegant home, on West Peachtree, in honor of her friend, Miss Nellie Van Winkle, of Columbus. The lawn was illuminated with colored lights of all hues, and rustic seats were placed in pretty nooks. A platform in the rear of the lawn was erected for dancing, and brilliantly illuminated, while the most delicious music floated from the shrubbery. The refreshments were elegantly served in the mansion, and the whole evening was an enchanting one in every respect. Among the guests present were: Mrs. and Mr. H. H. High, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. McWhorter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walker, Misses Ethel Lowe, Ida Mangham, of Macon, Willie Tinsley, of Macon, Adella Bell Murphy, Little Lowell, Harris, Ida Howell, Erika Richmond, Pauli Williams, of Atlanta; Wynne Lowe, Alma Williams, Doushka Holcombe, Louise Rigby, Tillan Lochrane.

There was quite a romantic marriage yesterday at noon at the Markham home. The contracting parties were Miss Mary Harper, of Jonesboro, Ga., and Mr. Q. A. Davis, of Columbus, S. C.

The party came in on the Central train about 11 o'clock and went directly to the Markham home where they were married. Miss Harper is the pretty daughter of Mr. J. A. Harper, of Jonesboro, and was a belle. She has a number of relatives here. Mr. Davis is a prominent traveling salesman from Columbus, S. C.

In all the present social dullness, when I thought that no new would come to me save that pertaining to the going and coming of people in search of cool weather, something quite startling and unexpected has reached my ears in the way of a wedding rumor. It has come faintly, like a lightning flash, foreboding a thunder storm in the season of heat; but I am sure that the truth thereof will be proven in the early autumn.

The young people who will do the proving are two very prominent social figures—the young lady, a noted Atlanta beauty, who has had scores of worshippers at her shrine—the gentleman, a resident of Atlanta, who keeps bachelor's hall in the home of the noted family of which he is the distinguished young son. He is handsome and brilliant. The affair between them I am told, is one of long standing and the wedding occurs in early autumn.

Another love affair which I hear began eight years ago in Atlanta, when the young lady concerned was a mere child and the young gentleman young enough to believe himself very old, is to come to a fair conclusion in a happy marriage before the year is out.

The young man is well known and as much admired here as in his Alabama home—indeed, his many charms have made him a national belle. She has been courted and admired wherever the light of her serene stately beauty and loveliness has been seen. Her love, a true freshness, seldom retained by girls after a first season.

Perhaps the fact that its possessor has held an undoubted social reign—her many admirers and lovers have unfailingly followed, others fallen by the wayside for lack of hope, has something to do with this delicious young man.

I hear that the young man upon whom the choice of three devoted at his shrine. But his choice is not surprising since no man could one and having had him from her teens to the present with others it is no wonder that the others failed. Everybody here is glad of this because she will add another name to the list of young married beauties in Atlanta and because it seems a perfect and beautiful union in every way.

Miss Nellie Hinnick's return from a delightful visit to Miss Nellie Smith, of New York, where she was honored with every charming attention that the people of that grand old state know as well how to bestow upon a beautiful and charming girl.

Mrs. Alexander Hopkins and her little daughter have returned from Indian Springs, and will soon visit her daughter, Mrs. Edgar Hinnick.

Mrs. Leeds Greenleaf, of New Orleans, will soon visit her daughter, Mrs. Edgar Hinnick.

Mrs. Willis Westmoreland and family have returned to the city.

Miss Mary Lou Bacon and Miss Annie Hanson, of Macon, will spend the summer at Lookout Mountain.

The many friends of Mrs. Charles Handy will be glad to learn that he is rapidly recovering from his recent illness.

Mrs. and Mrs. Hinnick, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Llewellyn Hinnick, of Macon, will spend the summer at Lookout Mountain.

Mrs. Walter, Miss Mary Ella Reid and Miss Emma Reid will leave for Lookout Mountain.

Miss T. T. T. will with Misses Reid and Hottel leave for Lookout Mountain on a two weeks' visit to the mountains.

A correspondent in Congress writes: There have been no marriages here within the last thirty days and it seems, from within the last ten days, that there is a matrimonial war sweeping

WASHINGTON IS READY

TO DROP AS FAR AS THE ROPE
WILL GO

So He Says—He Has Found Religion, and Don't Care to Live, But Wants to Hang in Public.

Washington hangs Friday. The negro has made his peace with God, he says, and only regrets now that he was denied a public execution.

"They'd been a heap of niggers come to see me," he says, regretfully, "an' white folks, too. I think they must 'a' let me have plenty of company that day."

But the public generally preferred having the execution in private.

Sheriff Morrow confers with Colonel W. L. Calhoun today, in reference to having two or three military companies on hand.

No trouble of any sort is anticipated, but it may be decided to have some military on hand.

The gallows is ready. So with the sheriff. And so is Washington.

At Peace at Last. Washington speeded a number of visits yesterday from divines.

In the morning Rev. Hall, Rev. Lee and Rev. Hart called to see him. All of them were most agreeably surprised. Each of them talked and prayed with Washington, and each asked about his spiritual condition.

"I've done got 'figion, sho'," said he, with emphasis, to the first who, Rev. Hall.

"I know of nothing that would have afforded the more delight," said the preacher. "Your change is indeed a praiseworthy one."

"Yes, sah," said George. "I've made peace with de Lawd. Let 'em hang a nigger now He's ready to drop—just as yore fella's wantin' to drop 'em. De y'all find dis yere fellow in de good lan'."

George paused for a moment. Then he looked up at the pleased face of the minister.

"Can't a nigger get 'em to take 'em out to de ole rollin' mill? I want 'em to talk to de folks, 'em 'a' have demselves, in de Lawd's name."

It was assumed that Judge Clark had decided otherwise, that this decision was inexorable. He lapsed back into silence and continued to pray. A few minutes later he was crying.

During the day he ate with a relish. He is not at all particular as to his food. Though he professes fast and omnia, he eats readily of what is brought him. In the afternoon his wife paid her weekly visit to him. The meeting was almost the last between the two, with, perhaps one exception, the final one.

The Gallows Erected. Early yesterday morning James Jordan and Faith, with the assistance of several revenue men, put up the scaffold on the same spot as it was placed last week.

The gallows had been taken down in sections and allowed to remain in the yard near by, so that the work of rebuilding was an easy one. In less than an hour the job was done.

It was necessary to put on a new railing. In addition an extra support was put in between the former one and the platform, and a railing placed on the rear of the gallows.

The whole in its dark-red color presents a most grim appearance.

Yesterday with Osburn. Osburn spent yesterday very quietly. Most of the morning and a large part of the afternoon found him asleep. Otherwise he was lying smoking or strolling in the old familiar way.

He seems to have lost his appetite altogether. It has been several days since he has eaten heartily. Yesterday morning, after he had been given his usual breakfast, he was brought, consisting of eggs, steak, toast and coffee. These he barely touched.

The coffee seems to be troubling the doomed man somewhat, but not at all seriously.

RAISING A BOY. A Mother Hesitates and Decides Upon the Raising of Her Son.

There was a little scene at the police station yesterday morning that pleased all who witnessed it.

It was between a mother and the Home for the Friendless society.

The mother, Mrs. Kate Edsall, had taken her son from the home, and the ladies of this charitable institution wanted the child to be returned.

Yesterday morning Mrs. Brittain and Mrs. Edsall met at the station house. Mrs. Brittain is a leader in this work, and desired to have her society keep the boy.

Mrs. Edsall let the boy go to be taken care of, and agreed to pay $10 a month board. She claims that she removed her son because he had been taken sick, and she thought she could not care for him. She put away her tears and was not rebuffed of his sickness, and she thought it very wrong.

Mrs. Brittain says the boy was not very sick, and that Mrs. Edsall had never paid her boy's board. It seems that neither lady exactly understood the other's position at first. Both were looking to the best interest of the child, but at first they disagreed as to what should be done.

Mrs. Edsall admitted and thought she was justified in taking the child from the home.

Finally she stated her idea was to return him to her home. This she did voluntarily, and the boy is now again in the hands of the ladies of the home.

Mrs. Edsall is a hard-working woman.

MR. JONES EXONERATED. A Controversy Between Him and the Brunswick Soldiers.

Brunswick, Ga., June 30.—[Special.]—Clifton Jones, general passenger agent of the Georgia Midland and Gulf and Columbus Southern railroads, had some serious charges preferred against him by the Brunswick Riflemen for failing them on their return from Chickamauga.

The Riflemen claimed when they returned that they were kept on the road twenty-four hours longer than was necessary by what they termed the misrepresentation of the general agent, and they said that Jones had promised them, through their officers, to put them on Brunswick on a special without delay, and that they chose the route home by that road upon the faith of this promise. They were compelled to stay over in Griffin fourteen hours and seven in Columbus. They were exasperated at what they decided the lack of faith of Jones and consequently were very mild in the expression of their displeasure.

The Brunswick Riflemen made an article based upon the expressions of the Riflemen, in which it was charged that Jones had made a desperate misrepresentation. The next day after the appearance of this article, Jones telegraphed an emphatic denial of these charges to the Times, saying that he was in total ignorance of the time the Riflemen made on their way home, and that they had left the Riflemen on their return trip at his old home in Newnan, and nothing had been heard from him on the subject. It is thought perhaps that Captain Wilcox and Lieutenant Colonel Wright, of Albany, will be able to explain the matter satisfactorily.

In tomorrow's issue of the Times will appear in full documentary evidence in the case explaining the action of Jones throughout, and giving the entire correspondence between that gentleman and the parties interested at Chickamauga. The telegrams show that all communications passed between Jones and the officers at Chickamauga, and show, furthermore, that no promise of a special was made, but on the contrary that the circumstances were plainly represented, as the Riflemen afterwards found them.

Mrs. W. B. Fritz returned home yesterday from an enjoyable trip to points of interest in the east. Mr. Fritz's face is a familiar one at Tyler's drug store.

Add to one quart of sifted flour a half teaspoonful of grated nutmeg, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one of Cleveland's baking powder, a half of salt; mix and rub in four ounces of butter. Add sufficient milk to make a dough. Knead and roll out, spread lightly with soft butter, fold in three, roll out again, and cut with a sharp knife into square cakes. Beat the white of one egg, a tablespoonful of sugar and one of milk together, brush over the tops and bake fifteen minutes in a moderately quick oven.

Use only Cleveland's baking powder, the proportions are made for this.

N. C. AND ST. L. STOCKHOLDERS. An Important Meeting Held at Nashville Yesterday.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 30.—[Special.]—A called meeting of stockholders of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad was held today, with 59,000 shares represented.

During the past ten years $2,383,117.86 has been expended in improving the property, and the mileage has increased from 340 to 672.

In order to capitalize this expenditure and reimburse the company for amounts expended in purchasing additional equipment, the capital stock of the company was today increased 50 per cent, to $10,000,000. The increase of $3,331,387 was offered to stockholders at $50 per share of $100 to the amount of 50 per cent of their holdings.

The proceeds of the sale of the new stock at 50 cents on the dollar will realize over one million six hundred thousand dollars.

This will provide for the $500,000 recently paid the government and also for the $500,000 Georgia state bonds, hypothecated by the company to secure the loan of the Western and Atlantic railroad, and will also provide means for making improvements and purchasing additional rolling stock.

The stockholders also receive something to represent the $2,383,117 expended in building branches and other improvements during the past ten years, which money has been taken from the earnings of the road. The usual quarterly dividend of 1 1/2 per cent was declared.

Mobile and Girard Elevated. COLUMBIA, Ga., June 30.—[Special.]—The annual meeting of stockholders of the Mobile and Girard railroad will be held tomorrow noon at the company's office in Girard, Ala., opposite this city. Several special cars were sent out this afternoon to bring in stockholders from Troy and other points. It is expected there will be a large attendance, as there will be important business besides election of officers.

It was 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon when Mr. Charles Kingsberry, of the firm of Bates, Kingsberry, was appointed permanent receiver of the stock of goods this morning.

Mr. Kingsberry is a most experienced business man, and a man of the highest business standing. His appointment was agreed on by the stockholders.

The amount of bond to be given by the receiver was $50,000. The stockholders thought $50,000 was a good figure for the bond.

Colonel Albert Cox thought the bond should be $200,000. Judge Clarke, after directing that the bond of the receiver be $100,000.

The compensation of Captain Kingsberry, came up, and it was announced that it had been agreed upon for the proper compensation for the thirty days in which he acted as receiver.

TAKE CHARGE OF THE ESTATE

Appointments Made Yesterday by Judge Clarke, Both Sides Suggesting Mr. Kingsberry.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Charles S. Kingsberry, of the firm of Bates, Kingsberry & Co., was appointed permanent receiver for the estate of the late Mr. Charles S. Kingsberry, and will take charge of the stock of goods this morning.

Mr. Kingsberry is a most excellent merchant, and a man of the highest integrity and business standing. His appointment as receiver was agreed on by the attorneys in the case.

It was 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon when Judge Marshall J. Clarke took his seat and asked if an agreement had been reached as to who should be receiver.

"It was announced that a name had been decided on," "Whom have you selected?" asked the judge.

"Mr. Charles S. Kingsberry," "He is a proper person," said Judge Clarke, "and I have no hesitation about giving him the appointment."

The order for the appointment of the receiver had been prepared and was read by Mr. Spalding. There were two or three blanks and about an hour was consumed in filling these in and perfecting the order.

The amount of bond to be given by the receiver was one point that came up. Some of the attorneys thought $50,000 would be sufficient. Judge Hillyer suggested $100,000 and Colonel Albert Cox thought the bond ought to be $200,000. Judge Clarke settled the matter by directing that the bond of the receiver be $100,000.

The compensation of Captain Morrow, the temporary receiver, came up, and Mr. Spalding announced that it had been agreed that $300 would be proper compensation for Captain Morrow for the thirty days in which he had acted as receiver.

THE SHERIFF'S PAY. Mr. Albert Howell, representing Sheriff Morrow, asked to be heard. He read a statement of what the sheriff had done as receiver, saying among other things that the stock had been insured for $130,000—that all the insurance companies were willing to take—and that the insurance had been reduced to $102,000.

Mr. Howell said the sheriff would consider a thousand dollars as proper compensation for the work and responsibility as receiver, and that $300 he regarded as too small.

Judge Clarke said he would not consider it good business to pay a man $30 a day for watching a store. He would like to get the job himself at $300 a month, and directed that $300 be put in as Captain Morrow's compensation.

Other slight changes in the order were made, and it was signed by the judge. It is printed in full further along in this article.

WHAT THE RECEIVER WILL DO. The first thing that Receiver Kingsberry will do will be to give the bond, and that he will give this morning. He will then take charge of the store in which are enormous piles of goods, aggregating in value nearly half a million of dollars. He will find the store, just as it was left a little more than a month ago when Sheriff Morrow walked in, cleared it of the crowd, and directed that $300 be put in as Captain Morrow's compensation.

Ten days after the inventory has been completed the receiver will receive and report to the court bids for the entire stock of goods. These bids may or may not be accepted, and if these bids are not accepted, he is authorized to sell at retail or in job lots, where the sales amount to a thousand dollars or over he may sell for half cash and half in ninety days.

THE ORDER IN FULL. Below is the order in full appointing the receiver and stating his duty and authority: L. & C. Wise et al. vs. Stephen A. Ryan et al. No. 23, Fulton Superior Court, September Term, 1891. Petition, etc.

After considering the petition, amendments thereto, the answers of defendant and the affidavits submitted, and after hearing the arguments of counsel on the application for receiver and injunction in this application for receiver and injunction, the court do hereby order and direct that Charles S. Kingsberry, be and he is hereby appointed receiver of the estate of the late Mr. Charles S. Kingsberry, and he is to take charge of the store in which are enormous piles of goods, aggregating in value nearly half a million of dollars.

He is to take charge of the store in which are enormous piles of goods, aggregating in value nearly half a million of dollars. He is to take charge of the store in which are enormous piles of goods, aggregating in value nearly half a million of dollars.

contract, and therefore as it may mature, without further orders.

Said receiver will pay to John F. Ryan, out of the $100,000 coming into his hands, the sum of one hundred and seventy-two dollars and twenty-one cents ($172.21), being the rent of the store house, No. 61 Whitehall street, for one month and five days, at an annual rental of $10,000.

It is further considered and decreed that the defendant, Stephen A. Ryan, be enjoined from interfering with any of the assets aforesaid, other than for the purpose of turning the same over to the receiver, and that all the creditors of the said Stephen A. Ryan be restrained from enforcing their said mortgages against the stock of goods aforesaid, until the further order of this court.

J. J. W. Morrow, sheriff of Fulton county, be and he is also restrained and enjoined from proceeding with any of the mortgage a. fas. against said stock of goods.

It is further considered and decreed that the injunction and receiver prayed for against the collateral in the hands of H. C. Cox and Walter Brown, and the real estate of John F. Ryan be dissolved, and the parties owing said claims be allowed to pay the same to them. MARSHALL J. CLARKE, Judge.

At Chambers, June 28, 1891.

WILL OPEN TODAY.

The Receiver Says He Will Make Bond and Begin Work at Once.

Receiver Kingsberry will take charge of John Ryan's stock this morning, immediately after giving the required bond.

"I will first take an inventory of the stock and then advertise it, as directed in the decree of the court. I will carry out the instructions to the very letter, and will dispose of the stock in the most advantageous manner. If the bids which will be reported to the court are not accepted, I will dispose of it either at retail or in job lots, whichever way I can realize most money. Of course I will need a great deal of help in taking the inventory and disposing of the stock, but I will arrange that."

Mr. Kingsberry is a member of the firm of Bates, Kingsberry & Co., and is well known in business circles. His appointment gives general satisfaction, and insures a wise disposition of the Ryan stock.

NEVER NEARER HEAVEN.

W. Trox Bankston Converses with an Angel in Chicago.

The members of the Georgia Press Association, who have just returned from the trip west, are full of enthusiasm over the elegant time they had.

Not one of the party is more enthusiastic than W. Trox Bankston, and the others of the party admit that nobody had a better time than Trox, of The New South.

Among Trox's various experiences is one in a high building of Chicago. He, by a great deal of scheming, reached the nineteenth story of a magnificent building, and the height rather stunned the many sensibilities of the famous young editor.

He hardly knew what to do, but finally knocked at one of the doors on the floor.

A pretty young nun appeared and politely asked: "What will you have, sir?"

Trox blushed a little, but in his impetuous and impetuous manner queried: "Is God in?"

"Why, no," laughed the girl. "He don't live here."

"Well, I don't want to be impertinent, but I don't reckon I'll ever get this high up again, and I thought I might find the Lord somewhere abouts."

Trox says he must have been near heaven, because besides the height he was greeted by something that looked mighty like an angel.

THREATS OF MURDER.

A DIABOLICAL PLOT UNVEILED
AMONG THE NEGROES.

How They Proposed to Delay the Hanging of Washington—They Thought the Government Was Alarmed.

A conspiracy among the negroes with
threats of murder!
That is what it amounts to from the best information obtainable, the news of which comes from a reliable source.

The details of the plot have just become public, but the plot has been hatching for some time.

Then the plot has been killed by changing Washington's execution from a public to a private one—so it may be said to be entirely dead.

Rumors of trouble among the colored population on the day of Washington's hanging have been for several days, and have formed an absorbing topic of conversation among them.

Since Osburn's reprieve they have been more dissatisfied than ever with the action of the authorities in not granting a reprieve to Washington, claiming that he was as justly entitled to a new lease of life as Osburn.

Evidence of the dissatisfaction is not wanting. One of the best known members of one of the negro companies openly proclaimed that the man who dropped Washington through the trap would have been shot dead on the spot.

The negro, though condemning the execution of the reprieve, admitted his allegiance to the state by asserting that he would have to turn out in uniform and protect the officers.

"You see," he said, "Governor Northen, is about as smart as he's unjust. He won't give the negro the same chance he gave Osburn, but he'll order us out to guard the officers, and we'll have to go or go to jail for thirty days. But God pity the man what pulled that trigger."

Henry Fain, that's the negro's name who made the talk—and he is a street hack driver—was discussing the affair in a Decatur street saloon yesterday in the presence of a newspaper.

"Our talk coming to the ears of Governor Northen," remarked Fain, "was the only sufficient reason why we intended to kill him in the execution changed from a public to a private one. The governor was afraid trouble might come where there was so much smoke."

"You see," he went on, "we have been meeting at a certain place to discuss this matter for almost a week, and the result of our action has been a full resolution which modified our plans, if it has not altogether decided us to abandon our contemplated disturbance. Those taking part in the meetings are members of colored military companies, and among us Washington has many friends."

"On the night before the hanging we had decided that we would march to the gallows, wherever it was erected, overpower the guards, provided it was watched and destroy it.
The destruction was to be so complete that it would be impossible to repair it or to build another gallows in time for use on that day.
If not successful in carrying out this part of our plans, Washington's black friends had murder in their hearts. Washington has plenty of friends here who would not care about dying when lying down on the floor and drinking a glass of beer."

The most murderous part of the scheme, depending on their failure to demolish the gallows, was reserved for Friday. While the dense throng of people surrounded the grim gallows, and just as everything was in readiness, the negroes who were in the secret were to shoot the man who pulled the string to hurl
the condemned murderer to his doom.

"The crowd," continued Fain, "containing so many women and children, would make it perfectly safe, and the man who pulled the gun trigger would get off scot free, as the command to the military to fire among such a crowd would do no good, resulting only in the killing of innocent people."

"The man who pulls the trigger will die before Washington," was reiterated again and again by the negro who divulged the information.

PEACHES AND GRAPES.
Better Crops Than for Several Years Past Reported.

Mr. John D. Cunningham, Jr., of Marietta, Ga., who has an extensive acre in grapes and peaches of the very finest variety, was in the city yesterday.

Mr. Cunningham says that the outlook for the peach crop around Griffin is better than for many years, and that the shipments this year will amount to probably one hundred and fifty carloads. The intermediate season around Griffin is unexcelled for peach raising, and the peaches grown here are of the very best variety and obtain a ready market.

The Middle Georgia Growers' and Shippers'
Union, of which Mr. Cunningham is a member, has its offices at Vineyard, and the fruit growers who compose it will ship more fruit
this year than for several years past.

Mr. Cunningham will be at Vineyard actively superintending the gathering and shipping of fruit during the summer.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS TO MEET.
Their Regular Monthly Meeting This Morning.

The county commissioners will meet this morning at 10 o'clock at the courthouse.
The usual routine of business will be gone through with. Reports from county chamberlain and county physician will be received.
There will be nothing of special interest before the body.

PIEDMONT CHAUTAUGA
Opens July 15th—The Distinguished Men
Who Will Be There.

One of the most prominent educational institutions of New York state is its famous "Chautauqua," and likewise one of the best educational organizations of the state of Georgia is the Piedmont Chautauqua, which will commence its session this year at Lithia Springs on the 15th of July, and close August 15th. The object of this institution is to give to the people of the Chautauqua, has been working hard for the past six months, making such arrangements as will make the Chautauqua sessions this year the most successful that have ever been held. The programme as arranged includes addresses and lectures by some of the most prominent men of this country. Among the most prominent men will be Governor Northen, Senator John J. Ingalls, of Kansas, who will discuss the "Problems of the Second Century of Our Republic." Hon. Jerry Simpson, whose unenviable sobriquet of "Socksless Jerry Simpson" has made him famous all over the country; Hon. Charles F.
Cris, the next speaker of congress; Hon. J. F.
Livingston and Mrs. Mary T. Lathrop, whose abilities as a public speaker children of Georgia have made her a reputation second to none other lady orator. In addition to these speakers just named, there are a number of other prominent educators who will address the Chautauqua sessions this year. The Weber band of Cincinnati, which furnished such delightful music last year, has been re-engaged, and will assist in making the meetings enjoyable for those who attend. The vocal music will be under the direction of Miss Carroll Heidt, whose reputation as a thorough musician is sufficient guarantee that the vocal music will be of the highest standard. Miss Heidt will be assisted by a quartet of accomplished singers, and there will also be a large band.
Doubtless this year's Chautauqua will attract large crowds to Lithia Springs.

WHITLOCK REMOVED.

BELDING'S SLAYER CARRIED TO THE CONVICT CAMPS.

He Will Be Treated by Dr. O'Daniels—An Effort to Secure His Pardon—His Wife Goes With Him.

M. T. Whitlock, the slayer of Neal Belding, was sent to the Chattahoochee Brick Company's convict camps yesterday afternoon to serve his sentence of ten years.

Whitlock killed Neal Belding about three years ago in a row at Mr. C. P. Johnson's bar on Alabama street, and was arrested and put on trial for murder.

He was convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to serve ten years in the penitentiary.
The case was carried to the supreme court,
but was abandoned before it was argued.

While yet confined in jail Whitlock was attacked by an aggravated case of blood poison which prevented his being carried to the penitentiary, and on this account the execution of the sentence was postponed by Judge Clark.

For two years he has lingered without any change for the better in his condition, and as it looked very likely that there would be no change, Judge Clark turned the matter over to Mr. George H. Jones, principal keeper of the penitentiary, and Dr. W. O'Daniels, principal physician of the penitentiary.

After making an investigation these gentlemen decided that Whitlock could be better treated in the hospital at the camps and yesterday it was decided to remove him to that place.

Judge Clark yesterday wrote out an order and sent it to Principal Keeper Jones, that Whitlock be removed, and this morning Principal Keeper Jones and Dr. O'Daniels went out to Whitlock's home to see if he was able to make the trip.

Dr. A. C. Moreland, his family physician, was in attendance upon him, and a consultation was held between him and Dr. O'Daniels.
At first Whitlock was disinclined to go, but it was represented to him that he could not be pardoned unless he was an inmate of the penitentiary, and that he would be treated just as well there as at home. He exhibited his willingness to go.

Captain Bill Starnes and Patrolman D. S.
Looney went out in a hack and carried the prisoner to the train.

He was carried by way of the Georgia

CHANGING NUMBERS.

THE WORK OF PUTTING UP NEW NUMBERS BEGUN.

Some Changes and Some Kicking—The Penalty for Taking Down a Number—Few Changes on Whitehall, Etc.

The work of renumbering the streets has begun and nice gilt numbers are being placed on every house in the city.

Mr. R. C. Bosche, the well-known sign painter, has the contract for the work, and he and his assistants are doing it nicely and rapidly.

A number is placed on every house, regardless of the protest of the owner, and it must not be taken down. The numbers are five by three and six inches in size, with the figures in gilt, nicely varnished. Some people, however, want fancy numbers on their houses, which they are allowed to have at their own expense.

All the streets running east and west between Decatur and Peachtree, have been renumbered, except Decatur street and Edgewood avenue.

"We will begin numbering Decatur and Edgewood tomorrow," said Mr. Bosche yesterday, "which will be quite a job, as they are the longest streets in the city. The numbers on Edgewood avenue will run higher than on any other street, probably reaching 900. Decatur and Marietta streets will run about as high. There will be but few changes on Decatur street, especially on the business part of the street. There will be some changes on Marietta from Forsyth out to the city limits, as the houses on that portion of the street are scattering and are numbered promiscuously. There will be but few material changes on the principal business streets. There will be none on Broad, but a small change will be made on Whitehall. Two numbers have been skipped on Whitehall and we will have to fix them. There is no 10 or no 32 on the street now. No. 11 being skipped between Patterson and Caldwell's and Heinz & Berke's, and No. 59 between Julius Watts and Ryan's. This will be about the only changes on the street.

"Yes, there is some lively kicking, but the law requires a number to be put on every house and we have to put them up, in spite of their kicking. The penalty for tearing a number down after we put it up is a fine of not less than $10 and not over $100. Some have threatened to tear them down, and some have went so far as to seriously talk of bringing suit against the city. A lady in north Atlanta said she was talking to the boys off and said she was going to have the blasted thing over her door and said if they were put up, she would not only sue the city, but would tear them all down. But we are putting them up anyway.

"The names of several streets have been changed lately, and as we go along we change the boards on the street corners. We have changed Calhoun street to Piedmont avenue; Bell, from the bridge to Hunt to Hill street; Morris street to East avenue; Blackman street to Summit avenue, and Emma street to North avenue."

"When do you expect to get through with the numbering?"

"Well, I can hardly say. It is a big undertaking to number every house in Atlanta, but I want to get through in time for the new city directory."

Mr. Bosche has a number of competent assistants, and the work will be pushed through with all possible dispatch. They are provided with plates by the city engineer of each lot, and the number that is to go on it plainly marked. Twenty-five feet of street front entitles the owner to a number, but if there are two separate houses on a lot, with only one front street front, they are given two numbers. Numbers, by which houses have been known for years, will have to go before the ruthless renumbering, and many of the owners are kicking vigorously. The numbers have grown to be a part of the house, and they regret to see them go, but in the meantime Mr. Bosche's men are kicking them up and tearing the old ones down.

Among the visitors will be three representatives from each military organization in the state. They will meet and select a committee, which will confer with Governor Northington on Friday in regard to the encampment they are making for.

See the advertisement in another column of the Grant Park Electric Railway Company, offering their bonds for sale through the Atlanta Trust and Banking Company of this city. They offer a $200 mortgage bond and $200 of preferred stock for $200. This is a first-class investment, and will bear the closest investigation.

THE HUMANE SOCIETY.

It Has a Long and Interesting Meeting—A Thousand Members Wanted.

The Atlanta Humane Society held its regular monthly meeting yesterday afternoon in the library of the Young Men's Christian Association.

The president, Mr. R. J. Lowry, being absent, the meeting was presided over by the vice president, Mr. J. Frank Beck.

The report of the officers and the meeting interesting throughout.

It was determined to increase the membership to 1,000 within the next few months. This number, it was claimed, is necessary to sustain the society and carry out its praiseworthy plans for the future.

By a unanimous vote it was decided to issue a monthly bulletin, showing the work done during the preceding month.

Colonel John T. Glenn read an extract from the code of Georgia showing cock fighting to be a violation of the laws of the state. This crumby society determined to make every effort to stop, and their agent was instructed to see that the fight be placed near Atlanta next Saturday did not occur.

To help out the finances of the society a series of theatrical entertainments will be given, commencing in early September. The date of meeting was changed from the 4th to the last Tuesday in each month.

Superintendent Carner read a very interesting report showing the work done for the month ending June 29th.

This report covers a period of thirty-five days, ending with June 29, 1891. Total number of cases made for cruelty to children, horses, etc., 127. Several cases of mistreatment of children have been successfully closed up. On a case especially deserving mention—that of Minnie and Maggie Grady, the children of John Grady, who were kept in a cage and were badly neglected. They were taken charge of by the society, and placed in the Home of the Friends.

We have also, during the past month, very successfully broken up the chicken main. Recommendations of the society's action at once upon the following:

1. That we have prepared a city ordinance for the inspection of all cock-fighting mules.

2. That this society take steps at once to have passed a statute forbidding the holding of cocking mules.

THE BATTALION DRILL.

Under the Command of Colonel Calhoun the Companies Will Drill Tonight.

The Fourth battalion will drill tonight. The companies composing the battalion, the Gate City Guards, the Atlanta Zouaves, the Atlanta Rifles and the Grady Cadets, will be out.

Colonel Calhoun will carry the battalion through dress parade and guard mount in order that the members may be better prepared for the encampment. The battalion will again drill on Friday night.

The time of the commanding officer having been occupied with the Ozburn case prevented the drilling on the days they were first ordered. Since he has been in command of the battalion, Colonel Calhoun has always been on hand when the order issued required him to be present, and he regrets that circumstances prevented him from meeting the battalion on the days previously specified.

The drill tonight will take place in front of the old capital.

TAKEN FROM BOTH PARENTS.

Neither Father Nor Mother Suitable Persons to Raise Children.

Ordinary Calhoun has decided the suit for the Nolan children by taking them away from both the father and the mother, and giving them to the home of the Woman's Christian Association.

There were two children, Lena and Mande, whose father was William T. Nolan and whose mother was Mary E. Nolan.

Mrs. Nolan had possession of the children and sent them to visit their grandparents, whereupon Mr. Nolan took them and put them in the home of the Woman's Christian Association.

NEW YORK, June 30.—[Special.]—Professor J. H. Cogburn came here some time since and formed a partnership with Professor Stokely to run the Independent Normal school, Professor Cogburn to have special charge of the business department of the institution and Professor Stokely the literary.

Very soon the two professors had a falling out. Cogburn left the institution, rented rooms up town and opened an opposition school and carried quite a number of the normal boys with him. Professor Stokely endeavored to enjoin him, but failed to get Judge Guber to sanction his bill.

Determined not to be outdone he was preparing a second act. Professor Cogburn decided there was safety in absence and left in a hurry. The breach between the two professors pretty well destroyed the school, but since the departure of Professor Cogburn, we hope that Professor Stokely will again get the school back to its former numbers and efficiency.

SEVEN TO EIGHT

IS THE WAY THE BALLOT SHOULD HAVE STOOD.

But the Expert Added Failed to See the Other Man of the Opposition—A Mistake that Means Much.

Even those immediately connected with Atlanta's educational system are liable to mathematical errors.

This time it is a mistake in the first principal addition.

At the meeting of the board of education four weeks ago, the matter of the salaries came up for consideration. Mr. Glenn moved to reduce that of the lady principals in the grammar school from $1,410 to $1,200.

According to the count the vote stood 7 to 7. The president decided in favor of the affirmative and the motion was carried.

After the meeting had adjourned, the opposing members were summing up their forces, when it was discovered that there was an error. They had eight supporters and had not been credited with them. But for an erroneous count that they would have been successful and the ladies would have been entitled to $210 more per annum.

It was this discovery that prompted a reconsideration of the salary list. The fact that the assistant principal of Walker street school was receiving apparently too small a salary in proportion to that of the corresponding teachers in the other schools, and the unaccountable reduction and increase here and there—these were secondary.

The entire matter has been left to the committee on salaries. This consists of Mr. Joseph Hirsch, chairman; Messrs. English, Lowry and Green. Of them, Mr. English, only favored the reduction at the former meeting.

The committee will bring in its report at the next session, which will be on August 6th, a week later than usual.

At that time the duties of assistant principal, the newly created office, will be defined.
